EBSQ Coloproctology examination

Introduction

The candidate for the EBSQ title in coloproctology should be a future opinion leader in the management of colorectal diseases in his hospital and/or country. Profound knowledge, including current literature of all colorectal and proctological diseases will be tested to become an EBSQ Coloproctology certified specialist.

1. GENERAL ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA:

All applicants must be from or currently working or have been trained in an European Union UEMS (UNION EUROPEENE DES MEDECINS SPECIALISTES) or associated UEMS country, i.e. Turkey and Israel. www.uemssurg.org.

2. CERTIFICATE OF SPECIALIST TRAINING

Candidates must provide a photocopy/scan of a valid Certificate of Completion of Specialist Training (CCST) or equivalent certificate issued by the relevant body governing the legal CCST in the appropriate national country, i.e. a EU, UEMS or associated UEMS country.

Note: If visiting trainees have trained within a country defined above and had a similar training to those who can subsequently take the CCST, even though such candidates may not be allowed to take the CCST for reasons of refusal of permanent residence, they should be deemed equivalent to CCST and be acceptable as candidates for the EBSQ. The EBSQ Certificate will denote that it is without national cost and does not confer right of domicile.

3. TRAINING

The minimum acceptable duration of training for EBSQ COLOPROCTOLOGY is 7 years. This must include a minimum total of 5 years in specialist surgical units. Candidates must have completed 2 or more extra years in coloproctology. Experience acquired as a specialist or consultant on a unit with senior or more experienced colleagues may be taken into account, but at least one year of advanced training must be undertaken in a nationally recognised unit. Trainers should be ideally EBSQ certified.

4. EBSQ Coloproctology examination PART 1 : Eligibility

For EBSQ Part 1 the candidates eligibility to take the examination will be checked. Requirements regarding the operative experience, the application form, all other required documents and a checklist are listed on the internet site of the UEMS: www.uemssurg.org

5. EBSQ Coloproctology examination PART 2 : the actual examination

EBSQ Part 2 will include a written case discussion and two “viva voce” examinations with two pairs of EBSQ certified examiners.

5.1. The written part is a case description (in English) with several questions regarding assessment of the patient and treatment options. Questions will also include current literature and/or ongoing studies. Answers must be given by writing. This test is limited to one hour.

5.2. General part: The first oral examination is a 30 minutes session of clinical case discussions with interpretation of diagnostic tools, specimen analyses and local status. You will be shown a picture and asked specific questions regarding diagnosis, treatment options and outcome. This part will test your clinical knowledge.

5.3. Academic part: During this 30 minutes session a current publication will be discussed. You will receive the paper (in English) one hour before the start of the oral examinations. You will be asked specific questions in regards to interpretation of this paper, similar to a review of a submitted manuscript. Knowledge on basic statistics will also be tested during this part.

The two oral parts (5.2 and 5.3) can be taken in several languages as listed on the UEMS website. Languages may vary from examination to examination. Check the website! The paper will always be in English.

To pass the examination, the candidate has to pass all three parts ($\geq 60\%$ correct answers/points) and have an average score $\geq 66\%$ points for the entire examination, while the written part counts double.

E.g. A) Written 70%, general 55%, academic 65% = candidate fails because general $< 60\%$. B) Written 61%, general 63%, academic 58%, overall 64% = candidate has passed all parts ($> 60\%$), but still fails the examination because the overall score was $< 66\%$. C) Written 70%, general 75%, academic 65% = candidate passes the examination.

Fees for Part 1 cover cost for assessment of eligibility and fees for Part 2 cover administrative costs and costs of the actual examination – these instructions must be adhered to.

All payments must be effected by the required deadlines and there are no refunds for (Part 1) candidates who are deemed ineligible to sit for the EBSQ Coloproctology examination or do not succeed in passing the (Part 2) examination.
